There was no change in the status of the Projektierungsbuero (Design Bureau) in Berlin-Friedrichsfelde. Only plans for standardized temporary quarters and temporary cultural buildings were being made.¹

It appeared to source that no clear line of action was followed at the Ministry of the Interior, and that there was an atmosphere of general uncertainty.² Major Egon Mueller was made chief of the Planning Department. Designs for hospitals with a capacity of 200 men scheduled to be built in Koenigsbrueck, Pasewalk and Dresden will probably be drawn up.³
